ROOSEVELT'S SMOOTH PLAN

May Result in Breaking the Deadlock in Peace Conference.

BUY BACK SAKHALIN.

Some Indications That the Japanese Would Accept the Compromise.

Portsmouth, N. H., Aug. 23.—The Associated Press is now in position to reveal substantially the suggestion of President Roosevelt for breaking the existing deadlock in the peace negotiations and rescuing the conference from failure. His solution would ingeniously permit the satisfaction of the Japanese demands for reimbursement for the cost of the war and at the same time enable Russia to face the world with the declaration that she had not ceded a foot of territory or paid a kopeck of war tribute to the victor.

The Compromise Plan.

The solution is the one which has heretofore been described in the Associated Press dispatches as the natural and logical compromise. Tersely stated, it consists in an agreement by Russia to purchase possession of either all or half of the island of Sakhalin now in the military occupation of the Japanese for a sum the amount of which, if the two countries cannot agree, shall be decided by some method of arbitration hereafter to be determined. The purchase money, together with the sum Japan would obtain from the cession of the Chinese Eastern Railroad and the maintenance of the Russian prisoners in Japan would, it is estimated, about equal the amount claimed by Japan as her bill for the cost of the war. Possibly, therefore, the solution offered by the President involves recession by Japan upon Article 5 (the cession of Sakhalin) and recession by Russia upon Article 9 (indemnity). It seems practically certain, though this cannot be affirmed positively, that the President today was able to give M. Witte substantial assurance that Japan would be willing to accept such a compromise. This is apparently supported by the authoritative Japanese statement made to the Associated Press tonight in the reply to a question as to whether Japan had not decided to make substantial concessions: "It all depends upon Russia."

A long cable message from St. Petersburg, which is believed to be the Russian reply, arrived about 10 o'clock last night, and M. Witte's secretaries, Mr. Nabukoff and Mr. Plancon, immediately began deciphering it.

ALICE GETS AN OFFER.

Sultan of Jolo Proposes to President's Daughter.

Jolo, Philippine Islands, Aug. 21.—Miss Alice Roosevelt, daughter of the President, was introduced to the Sultan of Sulu at the parade ground today. His majesty was so smitten that he promptly offered his hand in marriage. The Sultan is unable to speak English and made love through an interpreter in the presence of his retinue and the Taft party. Miss Alice begged to be excused. The party then attended a bull fight.

Frederick O'Brien, editor of the Cable News, was seized with cramps while bathing and the undertow was rapidly carrying him out when Congressman Nicholas Longworth, of Cincinnati, Ohio, rescued him at the risk of his life.

Miss Jean McKee entertained a few couples of the young people last evening, in honor of her charming guest, Miss Celeste Cuthbertson, of Bowling Green.

WORST OVER IN NEW ORLEANS.

But Fever Situation Still Serious Outside of the City.

DEATHS PASS 200 MARK.

Sixty-Nine Cases at Lee ville and Fifteen New Cases at Patterson.

New Orleans, Aug. 23.—With the fever checked in the city and plans under way to prevent further reinfection from the country, the local situation is still encouraging. Of the new foci, eight are above Canal street; one is in Rosa Park, a fashionable residence park, opening into St. Charles avenue, a well known citizen and a member of Gov. Blanchard's staff being the victim. Another case is at a boys' college far down town; one of the employees being stricken. The Rev. Father Aveille, pastor of St. Maurice church, is another patient reported to-day. Of the deaths, only one occurred up town, and he was a clerk who had been living here nine months. Report to 6 p. m. yesterday:

New cases	- - - - 57.
Total to date	- - - 1,503.
Deaths	- - - - 9.
Total	- - - - 214.
New foci	- - - - 21.
Total	- - - - 342.
Under treatment	- - 319.

Serious Situation.

The news from outside the city shows the continued seriousness of the situation from that point. Definite information was received from Dr. J. A. Devron, the State Board physician sent to Leeville, at the mouth of Bayou Fourche, a few days ago. His report shows that the first news from there was not exaggerated. During two days of work there he found the following:

Sixty-nine positive cases of fever, fifty-three suspicious cases and 145 cases of dengue. He adds:

"There are about 300 houses and families here, and I do not think there is a single house here which has not one or more cases of sickness. The people are distracted. All seem to have lost ambition to work. They are completely demoralized."

He asks for more doctors and nurses, as the situation is beyond the capacity of one man. He reports two more deaths since his arrival.

Fifteen New Cases.

Patterson reports fifteen new cases and no deaths.

St. Tammany parish reports a positive case on the road between Mandeville and Lewisburg, which came from New Orleans.

Hanson City reports six new cases. Kenner reports one new case.

There was one death on Elizabeth plantation in Iberville.

Sarry plantation reports two new cases.

St. Rose, in St. Charles parish, has two cases and one is dead.

Corinne plantation, in St. Bernard parish, below the city, reports one death, an Italian boy, whom the inexperienced nurse allowed to eat a fish, or red banana and rice, when he should have been denied all food.

Mississippi City reports three new cases, and says the report that the State Board had declared the fever epidemic there is unfounded.

YOUTHFUL BRIDE.

Girl of Eleven Years Married in Warren County.

Bowling Green, Ky., Aug. 21.—Lovella Cooper, eleven years of age, daughter of John Cooper, a farmer of this county, was married a few days ago to Rid McAllister, nineteen years of age. The girl is in short dresses. The parents of both the bride and groom had to give their consent before the license could be issued.

Line Fence Dispute.

George M. Smith and his son, James Smith, both of Elmville, Franklin county, were shot to death while repairing a line fence separating their property from that of a neighbor, Cal. Newton, with whom the Smiths had some trouble concerning the fence when they met their death. He has been arrested and is now in the Franklin jail. He stoutly protests his innocence.

CHANGED IN AN HOUR

BY HANNAH HOPPER.

Apicture! A woman half kneeling over a heap of time-stained letters lying loose on the carpet. Her form slight and graceful. Her hair dark and waving and falling loosely to her waist. Her white hands clasped firmly together and her great eyes raised beseechingly to Heaven. The twilight gathering silently and stealthily about her. A single ray from the almost somber west stealing in the half-opened window, and falling, not upon the kneeling form, but upon the confused heap of old letters.

A moan, despairing and hopeless, came from the half-parted lips, and the picture was changed. The hands were outstretched, and drew, in a kind of shuddering yet tender way, the yellow missives toward the beating heart—the head was bowed, until the face was buried among the letters, and then sob after sob shook the slender form.

"And this is the end of all my hopes and beautiful dreamings," she said. "I must bid farewell to all the tenderness, the sentimentality, the fond, fond musings, the adoring love which for years made my life blessed. I thought that I had conquered the pain, the heartache, that I could drop these letters one by one upon the shining coals, and feel no pang, but I cannot."

She arose, lighted a candle, knelt again upon the carpet, and placed the candle by her side. One by one she took the cherished missives, and, holding them tremblingly in the blaze, saw them burn to a cinder. Over one she hesitated, and half quivering pressed it to her lips.

"This is the first," she said, "in which he mentioned love."

She drew it from the wrapper, and unfolded it. The first words she saw were: "Dear Jewel," How those beautiful words had looked to her when she saw them the first time! Her heart had thrilled with an inexpressible joy, and she had slept that night with the letter upon her bosom, and could hardly sleep for the happiness that was flooding her soul. The memory of that great joy came rushing back, as she held the letter in her trembling hand.

Could she burn that which had made her once so very, very happy? "No," she said, slowly, and slipping it back into its wrapper, she pressed it again to her lips, and then placed it carefully in her bosom.

All of the others she consumed in the blaze of the candle. Then she arose, extinguishing the light, knelt at the window, and gazed mournfully into the "infinite meadows of Heaven," where the stars were blossoming one by one.

"Life is so strange," she mused; "and joys are so fleeting and so few. Once I knelt at this window without a shadow to mar the perfect happiness of my heart. I could not think of grief then. I could not think of sorrow could ever come to me, everything seemed so fair, so beautiful, so true. I had a betrothal ring upon my finger as I have now, but how differently I looked upon that from what I do upon this. I remember how I kissed it and blessed the giver, asking Heaven to keep him from all pain and sorrow. That is gone from my finger now, and here is another. I try to be glad it is there; I know that he who placed it there is true and noble, and love and well, and I have promised to be his wife. What wrong? I told him of these letters. I did not promise to love him as I have loved, and he looked sad, but said he would be content with less affection if I would only love him a little and be his wife. He said he would try to make me happy, and I know he will; but can he succeed? Oh! if I had never known this other love, or if I could forget it, then he would be all the world to me, and I could be happy, but I will be a dutiful wife, and trust to Heaven for the rest."

She drew a long sigh, dropped her head upon her clasped hands and offered a silent prayer, and then went in where her sister was playing some quaint old melody upon the piano.

It was only a week before the day appointed for her wedding. In her early life she had loved Aubrey Milton, and they had been years betrothed lovers, but at last he had gone away, and she had learned to wait and watch, and finally was told that he was false. Years went by, and she could not forget him. At last, when Hugh Gordon asked her to be his wife, she had told him all, and then, as he still desired her to be his own, she promised, and in a week the marriage vows would be taken.

The days passed quickly away and the twilight of the marriage came stealing on. There were few guests, and all seemed very quiet, and even sad, as if they were somewhat influenced by the sadness of the bride.

The words were said that made them man and wife, the congratulations were over, and the guests grew more gay, and laughed and chatted together merrily. Helen, now the wife of Hugh Gordon, threw a shawl about her, and, unseen, stepped out upon the broad piazza. The moon threw a cloudless sky, and the wind sighed and sobbed in the great pine tree near the door. She looked down the shady, quiet walk, and a desire arose in her heart to visit the old rustic seat at the foot of the garden where she had spent so many happy and innocent hours in the days forever gone. Noiselessly she glided beneath the great trees and soon came to the retired nook she sought, but the seat was occupied. She was about to turn and go back to the house, when the occupant, a slender man, wearing a loose overcoat, sprang up and approached her.

"Hold, there!" a voice from the outside cried, and with a joyful heart Helen recognized it as the voice of her husband.

In a moment the carriage door was forced open, and the frightened wife sprang into the arms of her husband, weeping for joy. Instantly, on finding they were discovered, Aubrey Milton sprang from the door on the opposite side of the carriage and fled. They would have pursued him, but Helen said, as she clung to her husband: "He will not trouble us again, dear Hugh; let him escape."

The driver was ordered to turn about and drive them back to the house, and the anxious guests never greeted a happier or more loving bride. Her feelings were revolutionary. The old love died out of her heart, and she loved her husband better than she had ever loved another.

The letter which the week before she had saved, feeling that she could not destroy it, she consigned to the flames without a struggle or a pang, and life was more beautiful to her than ever before. She soon learned that her old lover was dissipated and worthless, and undoubtedly sought her, hoping to marry her and thereby gain possession of her wealth. She never saw him again, and lives happily and contentedly with her noble husband.—N. Y. Weekly.

WHY SO WEAK?

Kidney Trouble May Be Sapping Your Life Away.

Hopkinsville people have learned this fact. When a healthy man or woman begins to run down without apparent cause, becomes weak, languid, depressed, suffers backache, headache, dizzy spells and urinary disorders, look to the kidneys for the cause of it all. Keep the kidneys well and they will keep you well. Doan's Kidney Pills cure sick kidneys and keep them well. Here is Hopkinsville testimony to prove it.

James A. Tryman, brick mason, 1230 South Virginia street, says: "Disorders of the kidneys brought on in my case so sharp and continued a succession of pains and aches throughout my back that I could not rest comfortably at night and arose in the morning lame and sore. I was tired and worn out from morning to night. The kidney secretions were irregular, high-colored and scalding and deposited a heavy sediment if allowed to stand. I had no energy left and felt generally run down. I was feeling worse than usual when my attention was attracted by an advertisement of Doan's Kidney Pills and I got a box at L. A. Johnson's drug store and began using them. In a few days I noticed a change in my condition. I assumed a natural appearance and the pain and aching had been greatly relieved and by the time I had completed the box there was a wonderful change in my condition. I am glad to state that I am practically cured and Doan's Kidney Pills will be my friend for life."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50c. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

As Done in Norway.

In Norway on pay days saloons are closed and savings banks open until midnight. So-called girls hire for half a year at a time by contract at public registry office. There is a telegraph box on every street car. One writes the message, puts on the right number of stamps and drops it in the box. Farmers can borrow money from the government at three per cent. There are practically no illiterates. The average wage earnings are $88 a year. There are more reindeer than horses, more sheep than cows.

Herbine

Renders the bile more fluid and thus helps the blood to flow; it affords prompt relief from biliousness, indigestion, sick and nervous headaches, and over-indulgence in food and drink. G. L. Caldwell, Agr. M. for T. E. P. Chocoma, Ind. Ter. writes, April 18, 1903: "I was sick for over two years with enlargement of the liver and spleen. The doctors did me no good, and I had given up all hope of being cured, when my druggist advised me to use Herbine. It has made me sound and well." 50c. Sold by Cook & Higgins.

Mr. Chas. D. Adams is quite ill of flux at his home at Church Hill.

To Cure Cold in One Day

Take Laxative Bromo-Quinine Tablets. All druggists refund the money if it fails to cure. E. W. Grove's signature on each box. 25c.

THE AMERICAN MONTHLY REVIEW OF REVIEWS

The more Magazines there are, the more

Indispensable is The Review of Reviews

"Indispensable." "The one magazine I feel I must take." "The world under a field-glass." "An education in public affairs and current literature."—these are some of the phrases one hears from those who read The Review of Reviews. The more magazines there are, the more necessary is The Review of Reviews, because it brings together the best that is in all the most important monthlies of the world. Such is the flood of periodical literature that nowadays people say that the only way to keep up with it is to read The Review of Reviews. Entirely over and above this reviewing section, it has more original material and illustrations than most magazines, and the most timely and important articles printed in any monthly.

Probably the most useful section of all is Dr. Allen Stark's illustrated "Progress of the World," where public events and issues are authoritatively and lucidly explained in every issue. Many a subscriber writes, "This department alone is worth more than the price of the magazine." The unique cartoon department, depicting current history in caricature, is another favorite. The Review of Reviews covers live continents, and yet is American, fast and foremost. Men in public life, the members of Congress, professional men, and the great captains of industry who must keep "up with the times," intelligent men and women all over America, have decided that it is "indispensable."

If some plan can be devised by which Japan can get money without Russia's paying indemnity, there will be a treaty of peace. Japan is in sore need of money and she is metacuriously how it comes just as Russia's adroit plan to have Japan renounce the demand for Sakhalin, let the island be claimed as conquered territory and then sold back to Russia at an enormous price, may be the way to work the trick.

A Madrid physician says the proposed marriage of King Alfonso and Princess Patricia of Connaught was declared off at the time Alfonso visited London. King Edward appointed two physicians as members of Alfonso's suite, with instructions to study Alfonso's physical condition. These physicians reported that Alfonso was suffering from phthisis and showed signs of insanity. Acting upon this report, King Edward broke off the negotiations for the marriage.

The horse show begins today and will draw big crowds every day this week. Nearly fifty fine horses have been entered in the various rings and the prospects are bright for a most successful show.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer one hundred dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address

It is highly important that these organs should properly perform their functions. When they don't, what lameness of the side and back, what yawniness of the skin, what constipation, bad taste in the mouth, sick headache, pimples and blotches, and loss of courage, tell the story.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

John D. Rockefeller attended the Euclid Avenue Baptist church in Cleveland, Ohio, Friday night and prayed in public. A shorthand reporter took down his prayer, which was as follows: "We bless Thee for the encouragement we have in the privilege we have in coming to worship Thee. We know the manifestation of Thy love toward us, but we often forget Thee. We are sinful, but we pray that Thou wilt reach out and draw us back as Thou hast always done. May all who seek knowledge receive it. Make us stronger, make us charitable toward one another, and above all give us patience."

Comparison with the City of Today and the City of the Future is a cheerful exercise. And plenty of material for the comparison is offered in the September Everybody's. There is, for instance, the intensely modern biography of James R. Keene, the great Wall Street magnate, whose contests with Jay Gould with "Standard Oil" are brilliantly described by Mr. Lawson. It is a particularly absorbing installment of his "Fremied Finance." It is in a chapter from the very heart of the light of today, this story of a man, according to Mr. Lawson, "of infinite strategy and daring."

McClure's has always something that compels attention, something immediate and significant that is important to all Americans. The September number adds to an unbroken series of "McClure's Articles" an illuminating study of commercial piracy, the first of Miss Tarbell's study of the Kansas Oil War, and an excursion into the marvels of modern biology, "Prolonging the Prime of Life," which is authoritative account of the discoveries of a group of scientists who have determined that old age is a disease.

Color printing has never achieved more perfect results than in the eight full-page productions of Lunge's paintings of the Grand Canon of the Colorado, which accompany William Allen White's description of the wonders "On Bright Angel Trail," a bit of descriptive writing which may well take place with the classics of our language.

Eugene Wood, George Randolph Chester, Mrs. Wilson Woodrow, Jean Webster, Arthur Train and Norvell Harrison supply a round of short stories, stirring, humorous, light or serious to fit every mood.

Word and Works Magazine.

Rev. I. R. Hicks, the noted weather forecaster of St. Louis, Mo., has for eighteen years past edited a monthly journal of national reputation, Word and Works. The January, 1906, number will contain the weather forecasts for the second six months of 1906. These two numbers of the magazine will take the place of the Hicks Almanac, which will be discontinued. The matter that has heretofore been published in the Hicks' Almanac each year will now be found in the magazine and much more. The Price of the Word and Works Magazine is 10 cents per copy or $1.00 per year. ## BRICKLAYERS' WIN STRIKE.

Union Makes Successful Demands for Shorter Hours.

DICK DALTON PREST.

Strike Adjusted and Men Resume Work Yesterday Morning.

The bricklayers belonging to the union quit work last Monday because they had come to the conclusion that they were working too many hours during the hot days. A formal demand was made on the contractors, Dalton Bros., for nine hours' work at the same rate per hour for ten hours a day—50 cents per hour. Owing to the large amount of work under contract the employers refused to comply, but told the bricklayers they would give them more money per hour if they would work ten hours. The men were firm in their demand and laid off to give the contractors time to consider. The matter was amicably adjusted Tuesday evening and the men went to work yesterday morning at 50 cents an hour, nine hours to constitute a day's work.

About fourteen men were involved in the strike, all of the bricklayers in the city except six who work for the Forbes Mfg. Co. Dick Dalton is president of the Brickmaker's Union.

The men were at work on the Imperial Tobacco Company's big building when they laid down their tools and quit work.

MILITARY CALLED ON

To Protect Prisoners From Mob at Russellville.

Frankfort, Ky., Aug. 22.—Gov. Beckham tonight wired Adj. Gen. Haley at Camp Yeiser, Paducah, to dispatch State troops to Russellville to protect W. R. Fletcher and Guy Lyon from mob violence. The men are charged with criminal assault upon Mary Gladder, a young German girl. The crime was committed in May last and Fletcher and Lyon have been in jail at Bowling Green since that time. Their case is to be called for trial at Russellville Wednesday. The Lexington and Frankfort companies of infantry and a battery with a Hotchkiss gun, under command of Maj. J. E. Allen, of Lexington, will go on a special train to protect the prisoners during the trial.

The indications are that Senator Martin, for the Senate, and Congressman Swanson, for Governor, Tuesday carried Virginia by large majorities in the Democratic State primary election.

IN MIDAIR. A Hawk And a Cat Fought Desperate Battle.

Montgomery, W. Va., Aug. 21.—Summer boarders at Bargar's Springs witnessed a terrific mid-air battle between a large hawk and a medium-sized white cat, in which both combatants lost their lives. The cat killed the bird and in turn was crushed by its fall to the earth. The cat was stretched upon a pile of boards asleep, when out of the sky an immense hawk plunged and arose with the animal grasped in its talons. The cat fought with great fierceness, and the upward progress of the two was marked by a swirl of fur and feathers. The animal in its fury tore great lines in the hawk and denuded it of its plumage.

High up in the air they hung. Then they began to fall, and as they neared the earth a trail of feathers followed. They struck the ground with a thud and all was over. The hawk was literally disemboweled, every feather in reach of the cat's claws being torn away. Its flesh also hung in little strings. The cat was badly disfigured and soaked in blood. It was apparent, however, that the fall and not the bird had killed the plucky animal.

WAS A SUCCESS.

The Appeal of the Prison Committee.

The people generally did not reply as liberally as they should have done to such a worthy cause; they probably would have done better if the prison fund social had been more generally advertised.

Kentucky is doing a great work in prison reform and other states have gone into the work with a vim. The prison committee of this State cannot prosecute its work without the funds, and should another social be given, the public will no doubt come more liberally to the assistance of the committee. The two societies of the city are deeply grateful to Messrs. Cook & Higgins for their generosity in giving them the use of their fountain, as well as to those who patronized them during their temporary closure of the fountain Tuesday from 4 to 10 o'clock, p. m.

The Simple Life.

President Roosevelt said: "I commend this book to the nation." Beyond question, the most talked of book today, whether in the pulpit or out of it, "The Simple Life," by Rev. Charles Wagner. It has caught the nation like wild-fire, and is constantly alluded to everywhere, backed by the endorsement of public men, literary critics and the press. President Roosevelt preaches it to his countrymen. The well-known publishers of Popular-priced books, Hurst & Co., 395-399 Broadway, New York, have just issued a tasty edition, which they will mail to anyone sending 35c. This firm will also forward a complete catalogue of books upon request.

RUNAWAY HORSE

Monday afternoon, as Mr. John Y. Owsley's buckboard automobile was passing McKee's grocery, the horse attached to the delivery wagon became frightened at the noise and ran down the street, colliding with a buggy and also with Mrs. Forbes' surrey. A wheel was torn off the buggy and two vehicles were otherwise injured. The damage was something in the neighborhood of thirty dollars.

JOHNNY TALKS. HE TELLS ABOUT THE SCHOOL ENTERTAINMENT.

"Me and Gene Pildersen ain't friends any more," little Johnny announced. "That's too bad," said the visitor. "What was it—a little rift within the lute or a bolt from a clear sky?"

"I had a fight with him," said Johnny. "His mother said he wasn't to play with me an' my mother said I wasn't to play with him."

"Why was that?" "Because he couldn't help but be common an' vulgar with the bringing up such a woman as his mother would natchally give him an' he wasn't to be 'tamed by 'society' with me."

"Is that a quotation?" "No, it's what his mother an' my mother said. 'Tamed' is a fighting word."

"I should say it was, Johnny. I wouldn't let any man insinuate that I was a 'tamed' myself. I thought you and Gene were chums, though."

"Well, we was before the school entertainment. You wasn't over to the entertainment, was you?—so, I know you ain't got no way to do with the tickets I sold you? Gave 'em away? Gee! I wouldn't have give 'em away. Know how many tickets I sold? Guess, No, sir, you wasn't anyway an' I sold you four an' Mr. Whitlaine four an' Mr. Jamieson four an' Bob bought one an' Mr. Simpler bought four an' Mr. Ed Brown bought two."

"I tried to get him to take four, but sister said she'd tell mother an' make me give back all the dollars I got if I tressed folks. She said I was with him anyway an' I was glad of it. She didn't go with you, either, did she?"

"No," replied the visitor. "You himf was one of that dollar, young man, and I'll play even with you one of these days. Your sister said she never had any idea of going."

"I guess she was afraid that if she went with you Mr. Whitlaine an' Mr. Jamieson an' Mr. Simpler would think she ought to have gone with them."

The visitor nodded thoughtfully and Johnny went on:

"We had cally—cally—you know them exercises with your arms an' stoopin' over an' clappin' your hands all together in front an' behind."

"Calisthenics?" "Yes, I'd forgotten the name of 'em. We had—those an' we had singin' in chorus an' we had speakin'."

"I spoke 'Tellus Notten Mournful Numbers.' Want to hear me say it?"

"Tell us now," begged the visitor. "I'll take your word for it, Johnny."

"An' Gene Pildersen, he spoke 'The Bark That Holt a Prince Went Down,' an' Willie Thompson he spoke 'Mark Antisocialism' an' Jim Connor."

"Never mind about Jim," said the visitor. "How did you get along?"

"Oh, I did mine all right. But Gene he forgot a lot of his an' teacher had to tell him out from the side of the platform. My mother was there with Aunt Laura an' Mrs. Wade next door an' she hatter laugh when Gene got rattled. She told Aunt Laura it was one of the smartest an' she said it was too bad that teacher didn't have any better sense than to put him on the programme. She said it was easy to see that the child was backward."

"Mentally, poor little fellow, an' it was a shame, an' she went an' talkin' like that an' pretty soon a lady settin' in front turned around an' looked at her, an' it was Mrs. Pildersen, Gene's mother."

"She didn't say anything to my mother, but she said to Mr. Pildersen, who was settin' next to her, that it was too bad some people hadn't any better sense than to laugh at a little fellow just because he hesitated for a second an' git him all confused."

"Alperin 'an' talkin'. An' then when I got up to speak my piece she whispered to Mr. Pildersen again that she hated to hear a beautiful poem murdered by a little git parrot, who hadn't any more idea what he was talking about than a phonograph an' that of all the 'bombers' in the world the worst was one of these smart children."

"My mother she said to my Aunt Laura that when it came to talking about smart children some people had a way of settin' their tongues a-gittin' an' never accuse some children of being smart, which was a great consolation to their mothers, an' that of all mean feelings that ever was being envious must be about the worst."

"An' then Gene's mother said suthin' more to Gene's father, an' he said, 'Oh, hush!' and then my Aunt Laura laughed an' I guess they was both mad. Gene's mother and my mother an' my mother said I wasn't to play with me, 'cause he couldn't help but be common an' vulgar. An' then Gene says to me that he didn't want to play with me, 'cause I'd taminate him. I told him I couldn't taminate him, an' whether I taminated him or not, an' he said he'd like to see me do it."

"Did you taminate him?" asked the visitor. "I patted him one," replied little Johnny. "An' he patted me one, but I patted him harder than he patted me."

"Was he stuck up badly about it?" "He didn't lick me. I guess neither of us liked, but I think he got the worst of it. If I had wanted to lick him I could have. I can lick him with one hand. But you ought to have been there to see the entertainment. It was so fun an' everybody said I spoke my piece best of any of 'em. Don't you want to hear me say it now? All right."

"You're outside now, but I ain't going out to play with him. A feller's got to stand by his mother an' his father, my lip's all swelled now where he patted me."—Chicago Daily News.

NO PARDONS

Says Gov. Beckham For Woodruff and Drake.

A communication from Governor Beckham was received here Tuesday stating that he had carefully reviewed the facts relating to the arrest, trial and sentence of John Woodruff and Francis Drake and had come to the definite conclusion that the case was not one to warrant executive clemency. Woodruff and Drake are serving life sentences in the penitentiary for complicity in the murder of Deputy Sheriff Robt. H. Coffey.

The trial was one of the hardest fought in the history of the county. The defendants were members of the miners' union, which with relatives and friends rallied to their support. There was a strong array of legal talent on both sides and every point was warmly contested. Deputy Sheriff Coffey was killed during the labor troubles at Empire in 1901, while pursuing a party of strikers who had fired on nonunion men on the way to work in the mines. Recently an effort has been made to secure pardons for Drake and Woodruff.

Gov. Reynolds, the man who turned State's evidence, is said to be in the man now in trouble at Russellville under the name of Guy Lyon.

I was very bad for a long time, but in Electric Bitters, I found just what I needed, for they quickly relieved and cured me." Best medicine for weak women. Sold under guarantee by R. C. ## Telling the Age of Eggs.

There is nothing that is more of an enigma than the average commission house egg. The age of an egg is as much of a mystery as the age of a lady who has last arrived at the age of majority. We have seen persons at hotels who would like to know the age of eggs that have been served to them.

One egg looks like another, and an aged egg is not very much different from one less antique. The man who has made a study can tell a strictly fresh egg from one that has been longer in the warehouse but there is still something about an egg that one feels like giving it the benefit of the doubt.

What the commission man would like to know is to be able to tell at a glance a fresh from a stale egg. This he would like to know without handling. The buyer would like to be able to do the same thing, and the customer is just as much in need of this ability as any of the handlers.

The United States consul, located in Germany writes something in regard to a recent discovery in that country which has a bearing on distinguishing the age of an egg. He says: It is based upon the fact that he air chamber at the flat end of the egg increases with age. If the egg is placed in a saturated solution of common salt it will show an increasing inclination to float with the long axis vertical. A scale is attached to the vessel containing the salt solution so that the inclination of the floating egg toward the horizontal can be measured. In this way the age of the egg can be determined almost to a day. A fresh one lies in a horizontal position at the bottom of the vessel; an egg from three to five days old shows an elevation of the flat end, so that its long axis forms an angle of 20 degrees. With an egg eight days old the angle increases to 45 degrees; with an egg 14 days to 60 degrees, and with one three weeks old to 75 degrees, while an egg a month old floats vertically upon the pointed end."—Poultry Item.

Treatment of Limberneck.

A quick cure will be found in giving the afflicted bird four or five drops of turpentine in a spoonful of water and for a preventative provide two or three table-spoonfuls of hypo-sulphite of soda in each gallon of water, and do not allow fowls to drink any other water. Where the fowls seem to be weak and vitality waning give them a pill of asafoetida the size of a pea each day until the bird has fully recovered. Do not allow the fowls to eat the carcasses of dead fowls or animals, as it is generally admitted by our best poultry breeders that such filthy habits of fowls and carelessness on the part of the attendant will quickly produce limberneck and kindred diseases, such as round worm, vertigo, etc. Give the fowls intelligent attention, with clean, wholesome food, provide plenty of good sharp grit and charcoal, and you will have but little trouble in future with such diseases.—S. P. Courier.

California Leghorns.

In speaking of the origin of domestic fowls, The Nebraska Farmer goes deep into ancient history of China and the Orient. On one point he is very explicit—that is, when he states that California is almost the same to the Eastern people as a foreign country: the soil, climate, scenery, trees, buildings, people and methods of selling and buying are so different that it is natural for the Eastern inhabitant to imagine that he is in a foreign land when he goes there. The poultry cultivation of California is becoming so extensive as to make them almost a locality to themselves. We have been told that one can see more White Leghorns on the square mile of ground near Petaluma than would be found in any other locality in the world.—Am. Fancier.

Value of the Incubator.

The incubator is a great machine and the few poultry raisers who do not own one now will at some time in the future. The machine is a better money-maker than the hen. The incubator will not be driven from the nest by mites and lice; it won't get contrary and decline to set; it doesn't get foolish and smash the eggs; it smearing the nest so that the unbroken eggs won't hatch, and it does not sit long enough to hatch one chick out of twenty and go off with it, forgetting to come to hatch the rest.—Farm Magazine.

LITTLE GIRL'S NECK BROKEN.

By a Frightened Horse on Campbell Street Yesterday.

RUN OVER ON PAVEMENT

Animal Was Hitched to Produce Wagon of L. F. Wade.

Champe-Carter, the 7-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gus T. Brannon, was run over and killed early yesterday morning by a vegetable wagon.

Louis F. Wade had stopped at the residence of Rev. W. F. Cashman, on South Campbell street, not far from the L. & N. crossing, and was standing at the gate when the horse became frightened at a passing train and ran north down the middle of Campbell street until reaching the residence of Chief of Police Shanklin. There were a number of vehicles standing on the west side of the street, when the horse swerved to the east side and the horse or wheels struck the little girl, breaking her neck. Mrs. Shanklin saw the horse coming at a terrible speed and gave the alarm, but it was too late for the little girl, who was playing on the curb with her younger sister, Rose, and Mr. John L. Brasher's little daughter, Daisy Lee, and the nurse. The other children got out of the way just in time to save their lives, but could give no aid to Champe-Carter. Mrs. Shanklin was the first lady to reach the child, quickly followed by Mrs. Brasher and the mother of the child. It was taken into the home of Mr. Brasher, where Mr. Brannon and his family are boarding, but it was evident that the child had sustained fatal injury. Drs. Stites and Jackson were at once summoned by telephone, but the child had breathed her last before they arrived. An examination was made and it was found that the child's neck had been broken.

Relatives of the parents were at once notified by wire of the terrible death of the child. Prof. and Mrs. James G. Bramham, who are now residing at Grand Rapids, Wis., are the parents of the bereaved mother, Mrs. Gertie Brannon. Mr. Gus Brannon was formerly of Owensboro, but located here a few months since with the intention of organizing another bank. They were boarding at South Kentucky College until the first of this month, when they took rooms and board in the home of Mr. John L. Brasher, on South Campbell street. They have one little girl left, Rosa, who bears the name of her grandmother, a teacher in the public schools here from the time of the completion of the building until the close of the last term.

The mother and father were prostrated at the way their child had been taken from them, but every numerous friends rendered every aid in their power in this the darkest hour of their lives. The deepest sorrow is felt by those who knew little Champe-Carter, who was an unusually winsome and bright child, and the sympathy of the whole community goes out to the bereaved father and mother.

Mr. Wade, who owns the horse that caused the death of the child, is a market gardener. He is greatly troubled at the occurrence, and is only blameable in leaving his horse to stand unhitched. This is the custom with most men who retail vegetables about the city, and as Mr. Wade was standing at the gate in front of the residence of one of his customers less, probably, than 20 feet away, he can hardly be blamed. We learn that the horse did not start off at a wild gallop, but the efforts of Mr. Wade and others to stop him only frightened him more and caused him to run faster. The horse is said to be of racing blood and when he reached Thirteenth street he was going quite fast.

A short funeral service will be held at Mr. Brasher's residence at 4 p. m. today and the remains will be laid to rest in Hopewell cemetery. There is not a day in the week that scores of horses are not seen standing on the streets unhitched, contrary to an ordinance of long standing. It, like fast and reckless driving, goes unnoticed until an accident results. Then it is too late. This paper has taken occasion more than once to call attention to careless and fast driving. If people would keep their eyes open they could see much that would cause them sometimes to tremble. Just the day before Mr. Brannon's child met its horrible fate, a lady, leading a little child hardly able to walk, was crossing Main street and a careless driver, thinking the street was his, came near running over the mother and child. We have good laws but they are too often ignored by every one.

MORE DIVORCES

Asked For by Wives Who Have Been Deserted.

There is a prospect of unusual activity in the divorce mill when it starts to grind at the approaching term of the circuit court. Three more suits have been filed in the past two days, to-wit: Annie Stewart against Henry Stewart, also the custody of their five children; Ella Blair against Tom Blair; Susie Bronaugh against Tom Bronaugh.

TEA IN THE TABLOID FORM

A Good Quality of It Is Used by Russian Officers at the Front.

Compressed tea is common enough in Siberia, but an unknown commodity in this country. It is ordinary black tea, which is very widely used by the Burials of the trans-Balkal region, by whom the herb thus prepared is drunk, flavored with salt and sour cream. Sugar would be preferred, of course, but it is either unobtainable or too high-priced, costing, as it does from 75 cents to $1 a pound.

The compressed tea is of a very good quality. Just now it is of interest because it is used by the Russian officers in Manchuria. The tea is compressed by superb modern machinery, evidence of which is afforded by the splendid specimen of die-sinking on the tablet itself. Such has been the pressure employed that the formerly soft and yielding leaves assume the appearance of a hard tile, which can with difficulty be cut with a knife. As a general rule a mallet or hammer is used to break off a piece, very much as if the tablet were of stone.

The tea employed is a straight Szechong, which needs no cream because nature has given it a slightly creamy taste and also one that is feebly saccharine, so that it requires less sugar than other teas. In flavor this compressed tea cannot be compared with the natural herb. It is much flatter in taste, but possesses the same stimulating properties. A piece the size of a thimble is sufficient for a large, strong cup. No tea-pot necessary. Scalding water is poured on the sugar in the cup and in a few minutes the tea is ready.

No cementing agent whatever is used in compressing high-grade teas—not even sugared water nor artificial heat. The little heat that is generated in compression starts the tannic acid in the leaves, which is all the adhesive required to hold the block together. A tablet thus compressed may be exposed to soaking rains with little danger of injury. As a general rule, however, compressed tea is kept in worsted bags.

YOUNG LADIES

Have Narrow Escape In a Runaway at Cerulean.

Miss Lottie Stith, who is visiting friends at Cerulean Springs, suffered a painful accident Sunday, says the Henderson Journal. She had gone for a drive with Miss Irma Goodwin when the horse became frightened and ran away. Both occupants of the vehicle were thrown to the ground, Miss Lottie falling against a barbed wire fence and sustaining a badly torn ear and a broken left arm. The fracture was so close to the shoulder that in getting the difficulty was experienced in putting the injured member set. Miss Goodwin, as far as can be learned, was not seriously hurt. Miss Lottie's sister, Miss Hattie Stith, is with her at present.

Fraud Exposed.

A few counterfeiters have lately been making and trying to sell imitations of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, and other medicines, thereby defrauding the public. This is to warn you to beware of such people, who seek to profit, through stealing the reputation of remedies which have been successfully curing disease for over 35 years. A sure protection, to you, is our name on the wrapper. Look for it on all packages, or Bucklen's Remedies, as all others are mere imitations. H. E. BUCKLEN & CO., Chicago, Ill., and Windsor, Canada.

LONG RUN

Of Fire Department Tuesday, But Little Fire.

A few minutes before twelve o'clock Tuesday an alarm of fire was turned in from West Nineteenth street. The department responded but when they arrived at the scene of the fire it had been extinguished. The roof of the kitchen of Mrs. William Lander had caught from a defective flue, but had done but little damage. It was a long, up-grade run and the horses were pretty well fagged out before returning to the quarters.

WAR IS NOW LESS DEADLY

Modern Ordnance Greatly Discourages the Hand-to-Hand Encounter.

As we gradually approach our own time we shall find not only that the proportion of those actually slain in battle to the number of those who are wounded shows a sensible decrease, but that the total casualty lists are actually smaller in proportion to the numbers engaged, in spite of the fact that the weapons of war are always described as growing more and more deadly, says the Philadelphia Ledger. In the campaigns of Marlborough there was still much hand-to-hand fighting, for, although artillery had taken its place in the battlefield, the infantry firearms were possessed of little range or accuracy. Accordingly at Blenheim and Malplaquet, two of the most bloody struggles of later times, although the slain show a decreasing ratio, the losses on both sides, out of a total of about 150,000 combatants, were in the former engagement 44,000 killed, wounded and prisoners, while the cost of driving the French from a strong position at Malplaquet was 20,000 killed and wounded out of a force of about 90,000.

Although in the modern armies of more modern time losses have reached in many instances a high figure, yet the percentage of slaughter, especially of killed to wounded combatants, has shown a remarkable decrease from the horrible figures of ancient battles and sieges, before the discovery of gunpowder and of the increasing perfection of firearms—paradoxical as it may appear—began to diminish the butchery which invariably attended the encounter of armed hosts in olden times.

The explanation is that fighting is now carried on at such a distance and in separate bodies of infinitely greater maneuvering power that the least tactical advantage becomes instantly obvious, while the abandonment of armor and the ponderous weapons of the melees has endowed bodies of troops with superior mobility, in both advance and retreat. In old days, when the effective range of the long bow was not more than 18 to 20 score yards, a battle could only be decided by armies coming to close quarters at an early stage of the combat.

The consequence was they became so intermingled that they could with difficulty be separated, and, indeed, the victor was often quite unable to feel assured of success until he found no more of his opponents to slaughter. Moreover, it was much more difficult to make effective use of cover than then, and the bowman of Agincourt was debared from the use of his weapon in the position adopted by his successor, the rifleman of to-day.

The romance of war once associated with the gallantry of hand and helm and the glittering blazon of heraldry is a fascinating regret at this distance of time. But as we speak with bated breath in these less warlike times of scientific armaments and warfare, or shiver at the reports of "terrible" losses in the field, it will be well to remember that we are alarming ourselves quite unnecessarily, and that our warrior ancestors went into action with far greater odds on their becoming dust and their good swords rust than does the soldier who goes up to battle against the lead-pumping weapons of to-day.

Novel Bridecake.
 At a Jewish wedding which took place recently in Calcutta the wedding cake was somewhat of a novelty. After the reception the bride proceeded to eat the cake, which was most beautifully got up and highly ornamented. Half way embedded in the cake was a pistol, which was fired off. Then the bride, putting the knife into the cake, set at liberty a number of live birds, which had been by some artistic arrangement caged in the cake.

Couldn't Miss It.
 "Good heavens, man," exclaimed the long-suffering patient, "you've pulled out the wrong tooth the second time."
 "Never mind, sir," returned the dentist, encouragingly. "I'm bound to get the right one next time, for there were but three in your mouth when I started."—Tit-Bits.

THE EARTH TREMBLED.

Shock Felt at 11:10 O'clock

Monday Night in This City.

FELT ELSEWHERE TOO.

But Few People Were Awake When the Quake Came Here.

A distinct earthquake shock was felt in Hopkinsville and other parts of Kentucky Monday night about 11:10 o'clock. The vibration, according to the observations of several people who felt it, being from North to South.

The shock rattled windows, shook beds so violently as to awaken people who were asleep and caused pictures on the walls to sway back and forth.

The shock lasted from 30 to 45 seconds. It was felt as far North as Louisville, as far West as St. Louis and as far South as Memphis. At Paducah it was reported to be quite severe. No excitement was felt in this city, and but few people who felt it realized that it was a sure enough earthquake, until the papers came with accounts of the shake in other places.
